

Countryside and Rights of Way (CROW) Act 2000

REVIEW OF STATUTORY DIRECTION(S)

SUMMARY FOR PUBLIC CONSULTATION

Prepared by Natural England

1. INFORMATION ABOUT THE PUBLIC CONSULTATION

Access authority: Durham County Council
Relevant authority: Natural England
Local access forum: County Durham Local Access Forum

Natural England is about to review the following direction:

Land Parcel Name:	Direction Reference:
Waskerley Park and Wolsingham Park Moor	2005030195

This is in line with the relevant authority's statutory duties (see Annex 1).

Your views on the current direction are sought to assist Natural England in deciding whether the exclusion is still necessary for its original purpose; and if so, whether the extent and nature of the exclusion is still appropriate for the original purpose.

The relevant authority may decide to revoke the direction or that no change to the extent and/or nature of a direction except the end date is necessary. In which case a Consultation Outcome Report will be published on the Consultation Pages of the Government's Website¹.

If the relevant authority decides to vary the extent or nature of an exclusion, a further round of public consultation may be necessary (see Annex 1) in which case a second Consultation Summary Report will be published.

Natural England last reviewed this long term direction in 2019.

A short summary is provided below giving the background to the direction. This should be read in conjunction with the other associated documents sent as part of this consultation. Further information is available from Katherine Sutton at restriction.representations@naturalengland.org.uk.

Wolsingham Moor and Waskerley Park is located in the Weardale Valley and is within the boundary of the North Pennines AONB and is close to the villages of Wolsingham and Stanhope.

The site is a combination of privately owned grouse moor and Registered Common Land and is bordered by CROW access land to the north, south and west.

The site is relatively flat with no obvious high points (other than Collier Law) or main ridges along which people may be attracted to. The Waskerley Reservoir (located to the north) and the communications tower(s) at Collier Law and south of Fatherley Hill could attract visitors to the site. The reservoir is however much easier to access from the Waskerley Way and minor road than from across the application site itself.

Based on research undertaken at the commencement of CROW access rights it was clear that even a low level of visitors may disturb birds from a specific area before or during a drive making it difficult to locate or to drive the birds towards the guns.

Directions were originally given on the grounds of disturbance to game. There have been both reviews and reassessments between 2009- 2019 in which the number of days available, to exclude access have been varied.

Using and sharing your consultation responses

In line with Natural England's Personal Information Charter, any comments you make, and any information you send in support of them, will help us to determine the application and / or determine if the restriction is still necessary in relation to the review or reassessment of a current direction.

We may wish to pass such comments or information to others in connection with our duties and powers under the open access legislation. This may mean for example passing information, including your name and contact details, to the Secretary of State or their appointees, the Planning Inspectorate or to the relevant access authority(s).

responded but not the names, addresses or other contact details of individual respondents.

There may also be circumstances in which we will be required to disclose your response to third parties, either as part of the statutory process for consideration of representations and objections about our decision, or in order to comply with our wider obligations under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 and the Environmental Information Regulations 2004.

Annex 1

In accordance with statutory guidance, the relevant authority has a duty to:

- review directions of a long-term character no later than their fifth anniversary; and
- revoke or vary directions where necessary.

Under CROW section 27(3) the relevant authority must review, at least every five years, any direction it has given that restricts access indefinitely; for part of every year; for part of each of six or more consecutive calendar years; or for a specified period of more than five years.

During the review the relevant authority must, having regard to the interest of the public in having access to the land, consider whether the restriction is still necessary for its original purpose; and if so, whether the extent and nature of the restriction is still appropriate for the original purpose.

Before reviewing a long-term direction the relevant authority must consult:

- the local access forum;
- the applicant or his successor in title, where reasonably practicable – for directions under section 24 or 25 made on application; or
- the relevant advisory body – for a direction made under section 26.

The authority must also publish a notice on a website (and send a copy to statutory consultees) that must explain that the authority proposes to review the direction in question; where documents relating to the review may be inspected and copies obtained; and that representations in writing with regard to the review may be made by any person to the authority by a date specified in the notice.

Once consultation is complete the relevant authority should have regard to any representations it receives before making a decision.

If following the consultation, the Relevant Authority decides to:

- leave the original direction unchanged, the relevant authority should record the date that the decision was made and should schedule a subsequent review where necessary.

If following the consultation, the Relevant Authority decides to:

- vary the extent or nature of a restriction, the relevant authority must give a new direction under the same section that was used to give the original direction. If the new direction is long-term, it must be reviewed within five years of the date it is given;
- revoke a direction, we will record the date that the decision was made.

Before varying or revoking a direction the relevant authority must: consult the original applicant or his successor in title, where reasonably practicable – for directions given under section 24 or 25 on an application; or consult the relevant advisory body – for directions given under section 26. In either case, follow the consultation procedures set out in the Relevant Authority Guidance but only if it proposes to give a new direction that would restrict access indefinitely or for more than six months continuously.
